

Background Notes

Kim Jong Il was well known for liking rail travel (and not air), as well as being incredibly good at golf. However he did once lose a game to Donald Trump and as a result was bound to allow competition between multiple rail companies to replace the Korean State Railway.

It was never revealed what would have happened if Trump had lost.